HIGH POINTS FOR STYLE

BEAUTIFUL HOMES BY ROMANZA INTERIOR DESIGN

Creating stunning spaces that highlight new trends in color, fabrics and finishes, Romanza Interior Design elevates home styling to an art form. Transcending the beautiful physical structure of a home to capture the essence of its residents, Romanza's design professionals have defined Southwest Florida's luxury lifestyle for nearly two decades in Naples.

An affiliate of London Bay Homes, a luxury custom homebuilder and developer in Southwest Florida, Romanza and its experienced team of professionals have earned an industry-wide reputation for delivering unparalleled interior and architectural services – with a singular focus on each client.

Whether creating the interior design for one of London Bay's newest model homes in Port Royal or a private residential home in Old Naples, the team is always on the lookout for the latest design trends and styles that will create lasting memory points in a well-loved home.

Earlier this year, the Romanza Interior Design team made the annual pilgrimage to their industry's mecca – High Point Market in North Carolina – to track the trends and spot the styles that are on the cutting edge of home furnishings.

"Jewel tones were everywhere," said Jennifer Stevens, senior design director for Romanza. "From cool emeralds and amethysts to warm rubies and citrines, color was prominently featured in both upholstery and accessories."

“An important part of our profession is forecasting trends and staying ahead of the curve so we're able to offer clients the most up-to-date selections.”

Textural elements were also trending at High Point. "Whether through fabrics, furniture or lighting, texture adds dimension – both visually and from a tactile standpoint," said Stevens. "I often layer texture in the rooms we design to add richness."

Other trends included updated takes on traditional designs, mixed material furniture and an emphasis on oversized lamps and tiny tables. Unique combinations – such as a staircase combining stained walnut brown handrails with clear tempered glass side panels and accents of brushed metal hardware – elevate everyday pieces to the extraordinary.

"An important part of our profession is forecasting trends and staying ahead of the curve so we're able to offer clients the most up-to-date selections," noted Stevens. "One home in particular that we recently completed in Port Royal showcases many design elements we saw at High Point this spring, from the saturated choices of color, to the judicious use of mixed materials and textures throughout the rooms."

The Port Royal home, featuring interiors by Stevens, is part of London Bay's Naples Collection of custom-designed estates. Located at 4395 Gordon Drive, the estate showcases a sophisticated design blending honed stone and wood plank flooring, accent panels of exotic woods like sapele, anigre and walnut, and distinctive reglet details on walls and door frames to create a uniquely contemporary style that unifies the foyer, great room, wine cellar and study.

Stevens' interior palette eschews the expected white-on-white in favor of neutral taupes and ivories and accents of green and tan inspired by the home's lush landscape design.

"The contemporary elegance is recognizable in the clean-lined, large-scale upholstered furniture and in the sophisticated palette of finishes, including mixed metals, woods and leather," said Stevens.

Boasting four bedrooms and five baths within 4,667 square feet of interior living space, the 4395 Gordon Drive home is just one of a myriad of model and private homes beautifully stylized by Romanza Interior Design in Naples.
